Tri-County Success Story: Julia Bialy

Julia is currently living in DC working full-time as a business immigration paralegal at a law firm and attends law school part-time in the evening at George Washington University Law School. She is currently in her third year and anticipated graduation is May 2025. Julia is extremely passionate about the law and constantly learning more. She hopes to be able to work at a large law firm post-graduation, potentially continuing in business immigration or shifting gears to another field such as government contracts which has piqued her interest.

As a first-generation student, I was not surrounded by friends and family that were lawyers, nor did I have any idea what law school would require of me. Tri-County opened the door to quality education; providing the financial assistance to attend a school with resources to guide students to different career paths and gave me an exposure to the law. Thank you for all that you do for students like me and many more!"
